

Resources Related to Parenting

How Children Raise Parents by Dan Allender

Not only do parents shape their children's lives but God also uses children to shape their parents' lives. We must go to our kids as students to discover insights about life and relationships. This is a must read for parents who want to be listeners of their kids.

Parenting in the Pew by Robbie Castleman

Good insights on worship in general and practical principles to teach children how to worship in a corporate setting. Not a fan of everything she says but good gleanings. The author draws from her own experiences as a pastor's wife to relate the ups and downs and sometimes embarrassing aspects of training young children to worship Sunday mornings.

Come Back, Barbara by Rose Marie Miller

What can we learn from a rebellious child? What does it teach us about ourselves and our need for Christ? This book speaks to the pain and passion of raising prodigal children. Becoming a classic must read.

How to Enjoy Raising Your Children by Harold Sala

This is a down to earth treatment of the big parenting issues like communication, discipline, sex education, teenagers, etc.

The Young Peacemaker by Corlette Sande

Conflict resolution is a major skill in life and the earlier we learn it well the better. The author describes how we tend toward either fleeing or fighting when we are faced with conflict and makes the biblical distinction between being a peace faker, a peace breaker and a peace maker.

The Age of Opportunity by Paul Tripp

Teenagers!!!! This is the book you want if you have kids headed for the confusing years of adolescence. It's a time for hopeful optimism not a time to simply baton down the hatches.

Instruments in the Redeemer's Hands by Paul Tripp

How can we help people change? What are the keys to helping people struggle through their temptations, difficulties and failings? This is an excellent resource which provides a means to love, listen and guide others in living out the gospel.

Shepherding a Child's Heart by Tedd Tripp

Excellent book on the central focus of parenting.... To reach and engage their child's heart. My best recommendation.

Parents in Pain by John White

Classic book for parents struggling with a rebellious child. Strong comfort and guidance from a parent who's been there.